Henkhaus withdraws from race

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Madison County Treasurer Mike Henkhaus has decided not to seek the congressional seat now held by Rep. Mel Price, D-Belleville.

The decision essentially makes it a three-man race.

Henkhaus said the high cost of a primary campaign, which he said would cost at least $200,000, was the main reason he pulled out.

"It's a shame you really have to have a need of a lot of money to run a congressional campaign," Henkhaus said. He said he did not want to put his family into debt or disrupt his family's business.

Henkhaus said a recent poll indicated he had enough initial support to make the race, but he said the poll also indicated he was little known in other district cities.

Henkhaus said he would wait to support a candidate for the seat.

"I'm going to see who's the best candidate. I'm probably going to support somebody," Henkhaus said.

Henkhaus, of Bethalto, had said he planned to be in the running for the seat but had not yet formally announced his candidacy.

The chances of a Madison County candidate winning the Democratic primary are better now that he has withdrawn, Henkhaus said.

Both St. Clair County Democrats have announced their candidates-St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello and Madison County Auditor Pete Fields said he will formally announce his candidacy for the seat within a week.

Another contender for the 21st Congressional District seat will soon announce his candidacy and may do it in Venice.

Madison County Auditor Pete Fields said he will formally announce his candidacy for the seat within a week.

"It's appropriate. It's my home town. I want to try to help them. It's not finished yet, but that's what I'm working on," Fields said. He said he will try to schedule a Sunday for the announcement day.

Fields said Henkhaus' decision will help his campaign.

"His absence is really going to help. We would have banged each other up pretty bad," Fields said, though he said his

ANNOUNCING HIS CANDIDACY: Mike Mansfield, an aide to Rep. Mel Price, announces his candidacy for the 21st District congressional post Saturday.

Swift thinking Mansfield makes statement with press conference site

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

NATIONAL CITY — Mike Mansfield, a top aide to Rep. Mel Price, D-Belleville, announced his plan to seek the 21st Congressional District seat Saturday.

Price has said he will not seek re-election to the post he has held for 22 consecutive terms. He has made no endorsement, however.

St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello is the only Democrat to have formally announced his candidacy for the congressional seat.

At a press conference at the old Swift Meat Packing Co. in National City, Mansfield, 33, said he had sought the congressional date, but one whose only special interest is the people in the 21st District.

"I believe I am the most qualified candidate for the seat because of my 10 years experience and I believe I have the capability to understand the people," he said.

The Swift site was symbolic,

Mansfield said, because he believes' a compromise with company officials and the plant could have re-opened the plant.

Mansfield blamed a letter Costello wrote to Swift officials in Texas as the final breakdown in negotiations by local representatives to have the facility reopened.

"We have a plant I believe should have been in operation," he said. "Compromise and negotiations broke down when maybe things got a little out of hand."

Saying he is an advocate of labor unions, Mansfield said the re-opening would have created an $8 million payroll; $600,000 income a year to the Metro-East Sanitary District for sewage treatment, and $3.8 million to the farm industry.

"Over 400 people could be working. What happens if you put that frame of thought like Costello's in the federal level?"

"I don't agree with all Swift was going to do, but ... how do you organize (a union) at a plant that's not even open?"

Among his accomplishments while working as state assistant director of legislative and administrative assistant to Price over the past eight years, Mansfield cites his assistance in:

- Securing $24 million for repair of the Metro-East Sanitary District flood prevention system.

- Gardening governmental contracts for General Railroad Co. of Alton, Olin Brass and Belleville Shoe.

- Securing 100 apartments for military personnel in Granite City and Alton.

- Obtaining a highway demonstration project for Glen Carbon and Edwardsville.

Mansfield said Price has always been a fair and dedicated public servant who has tried to resolve the problems of all his constituents regardless of their race or financial level.

"I have had the rewarding experience of learning 'how-to' from the best," Mansfield said.

"That's why I want to be connected with the community."

Aldi's will build store

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — It is "100 percent" certain an Aldi Stores supermarket will be built in Granite City, said an Aldi spokesman.

Aldi general manager Leonard Purvis, Wright City, Mo., said site preparation work has begun on Aldi property located across from the Granite City High School baseball field on Fenning Road.

"If we can, we'll start the building this fall. We normally don't start construction in the winter. It depends on the weather. It can't be completed by Christmas," Purvis said.

The Aldi store was preceded by new reports that when it was introduced in 1985 because they feared the store would cause drainage and traffic problems.

The city approved a zoning plan this summer and Aldi had a building permit for the 11,000-square-foot structure.

City Engineer Roger Hadley said Aldi's building permit expires in 1988, and the company would have to renew the permit to begin construction on the building later than that date.

$2.9 million budget adopted in Venice

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

VENICE — No changes were made in the School District's 1987-88 budget, totaling $2,902,663, following a public hearing Thursday night.

Revenue of $1,424,637 is projected for the district.

The current financial picture appears much better than in past years, said Superintendent of Schools Robert Vickers.

"Even with the cut in state aid we are not anticipating having to borrow any new money this year," the administrator said.

Venice expects to receive $490,121 in state aid entitlement funds this year, a loss of $45,677 from funds received in 1986-87.

Vickers said:

A reduced amount is expected and is reflected in the budget.

"I had budgeted $500,000 and

Nameoki could suffer from pullout of county program

By Bill Bagby
Staff writer

NAMEOKI — Nameoki Township could face difficulties receiving Community Development Block Grant funds if Granite City and Alton pull out of the county's CDBG program.

The two cities can pull out of the county program because some communities receiving CDBG funds directly from HUD, said Madison County Board Chairman Nellie Hagnauer. Granite City, in particular, would be at the Nameoki Town Board meeting. Both cities are considering withdrawing from the program.

"If both of these communities decide to leave the county's program, Madison County would lose its eligibility status and would no longer receive a grant," Hagnauer said. "If one of the communities opted out of the program, Madison County would retain eligibility but the grant would be at a reduced level."

Nameoki Township was allotted $18,000 both last year and this year in CDBG money from the county, Briggs said. Officials used the money for housing, road and drainage rehabilitation in Nameoki areas of the township, Briggs said.

"Oct. 15 is the deadline for communities to pull out of the county program," Hagnauer said. He said more than $1 million had been committed to the program since it began 12 years ago.

There's nothing township officials can do to keep Granite City and Alton from pulling out, Briggs said.

"All I can do is sit back and wait," he said. "It's a wait-and-see deal."

"If Granite City and Alton pull out of the program, then the county loses," Hagnauer said. "If they stay in the program we will continue to benefit by receiving these funds directly."

From White House to courthouse

Ceremonies today commemorating the bicentennial of the signing of the U.S. Constitution range from a nationwide salute to brief remarks at the Madison County Courthouse and in local classrooms. President Ronald Reagan is asking the nation to join in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance and the Preamble to the Constitution at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in "A Celebration of Citizenship." Madison County Chief Circuit Judge Paul J. O'Neill has asked the presiding judge in each courtroom and a court to read a proclamation from Illinois Chief Justice William G. Clark. The judges will then read a statement acknowledging the Constitution's 200th birthday and reaffirming a commitment to the principles of government enshrined in the Constitution.

Partney proposes youth center

Fourth Ward Alderman Dan Partney has asked the District 9 School Board to consider converting the old Logan Elementary School, 2419 Logan Ave., into a youth center and making the new Logan School, 2400 W. 25th St., into a senior citizens center. The old Logan School is empty and the newer building is used for storage. The Granite City Council of Youth has held several dances to raise funds for a center.

Q: Should Pontoon Beach issue general obligation bonds for a multimillion-dollar development proposed at Interstate 255-270?

Developer Stan Lucas said last week he will not ask the village to issue the $3 million in bonds that had been discussed, but the development of the property is expected to go ahead.

Quote of the week

"There's times you look at your future in the crystal ball in Granite City and you just don't see yourself," said Joe Mikivich of St. Louis, who quit his job as city comptroller. He said he did not like having his job tied to the whims of Madison County politicians, who at one time had suggested a residency requirement for city employees, as a possible campaign issue.

Tip of the hat

United Way spirit

Darryl Slater, general chairman of the Tri-Cities Area United Way campaign, got the drive going Sept. 10 with a kickoff breakfast for more than 300 people at the Granite City Township Hall. Slater had a goal of $810,000, which will be used to help meet the operating costs of member organizations during 1988. "I'm confident the people of the Tri-Cities Area share a commitment to continue the quality services provided by United Way agencies, he said."

Ways to save many lives on highways

To the editor:
Highway safety has become a major issue in recent years, with federal and state governments taking important steps to save lives and prevent injuries.

We have enacted tougher laws against drunk and drugged driving. Automobile manufacturers equip some models with new crash protection systems, perhaps as early as next year.

Congress has enacted mileage tax laws to encourage use of commercial trucks, including the requirement that professional drivers prove their competence by meeting uniform national regulations.

But we should not use this progress for self-congratulations.

There were 46,000 deaths on the highways last year, a 3 percent increase over 1985.

The many women and children who die in highway accidents are friends, neighbors and loved ones. Thousands of these deaths are entirely preventable.

I have introduced legislation to designate Oct. 15 as National Safety Belt Use Day. My purpose is to encourage greater use of life-saving devices, child safety seats and safety belts.

In 1984, I helped to pass legislation that required the states to use at least 8 percent of their federal highway safety funds to encourage the use of child safety seats.

Now 30 states now have safety seat laws on the books. Missouri's program is representative: children under four years of age must be protected by safety seats with headrests in front; children in a rear seat must be restrained with a seat or belt.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reports that safety seat use more than tripled between 1981 and 1986.

A child in a properly installed safety seat can survive 71 percent of those accidents that would be fatal to an unrestrained child; safety seats can prevent 69 percent of the hospitalizations suffered by children without protection.

I am advocating seeking greater reliance on safety seats; public education efforts should focus on proper installation and use.

Safety belts used by adults are important weapons against highway death. So far, Illinois, Missouri and 25 other states have enacted seat belt laws. When combined with good laws and energetic enforcement, such efforts can increase the use of belts and save lives.

Seat belts, however, are no substitute for improved crash protection with air bags or automatic safety belts.

In Great Britain, seat belt use has risen to 90 percent, and deaths have been reduced. But certain types of serious injuries actually have increased.

A study in British hospital accident units found that severe head injuries have risen by 46 percent under the new seat belt law. This occurred because drivers with safety belts frequently strike their heads against the upper body strikes the steering wheel.

Air bags that inflate at the moment of impact can prevent such injuries and further reduce deaths.

The Department of Transportation estimates that air bags used with belts would save 8,500 lives annually and prevent more than 100,000 injuries.

I welcome the announcement by auto manufacturers including Ford and Chrysler that they will use air bags in their cars and safety belts or heavily padded interiors.

Public opinion has been vital to advancing highway safety in recent years. Greater awareness of the need for safety belts and safety belts will mean that more Americans will arrive alive.

Branch library project

NEARING COMPLETION: The 3,880-square-foot branch library at 2145 Johnson Road nears completion as windows are installed throughout the structure. The $600,000 building will hold in excess of 30,000 books and seat more than 60 people. Books will be displayed in floor-to-ceiling carousels situated inside the windowed alcoves, seen around the perimeter of the metal building. Skylights, which circle the structure, and indirect electric lighting will illuminate the interior for patrons. The library features a central, sound-insulated reading room and an outdoor program area.

Special education group to hold Sept. 21 meeting

Parents for Special Education are coordinating a program for parents, disabled adults, and young children. Young children will view a video during the presentation scheduled for Monday, Sept. 21, at 7 p.m. at Coal Ridge Junior High School. The public is welcome.

Steve Balen, director of special education for the Granite City, Madison and Vandalia school districts, will tell parents about programs planned for the new school year, and will explain procedures to follow if parents have concerns.

Dick Goodwin and Scott MacDonal from Impact will explain services their agency offers. Impact is a non-residential center for disabled adults. It also serves as an information and referral agency for Madison County.

Variety programs are offered, such as assistance with housing referrals, adaptive equipment, personal management, daily living skills, and peer counseling. Advocacy in education and employment are addressed.

Impact has special services for the deaf, blind, head-injured, and newly disabled persons and their families. Special education adults also are served by Impact.

The Parents for Special Education group is a non-profit organization that promotes quality education for special children and provides recreation to the disabled of all ages.

A short meeting will be held after the two speakers are heard, for those wishing to stay.

A dance will be held on the second Friday of each month from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Harold Brown Recreation Center, Coal Ridge Road and Franklin Avenue.

Live music will be provided. Special education students 14 years old and over are welcome to attend the dances, and parents are invited to stay. There is no cost for the first dance.

Transportation is available on a limited basis through ACT

(Agency for Community Transit). Kay Hahne may be called to reserve a seat, at 451-9832.

Bowling is held every Saturday at Bowland Lanes from 1 to 3 p.m. Cost is $1.65 for three games, including shoes and the use of a house ball.

Ramps are available for wheelchair bowlers. Regular attendance is not required. Transportation will be provided by ACT from the OATH parking lot, 1817 Delmar Ave., Granite City, at 12:45. The bowling, which began on Sept. 12, is open to any age.

College For Educated Adults is a program for out-of-school special education adults. It is intended to maintain skills learned and to teach new skills.

Offered this year are academic, vocational, living skills, exercise and health. For more information, President Carolyn Smoot can be contacted at 931-2943.

Area road, bridge bids received

SPRINGFIELD — More than $2.2 million in low bids for area road and bridge construction projects were announced Sept. 3.

Area projects include:

J.F. Edwards Construction Co., Genesee, was low bidder at $742,000 (estimate: $745,000) for small 20-foot motorist aid call boxes along I-255 between I-55/70 and 1-270.

C.D. Peters Construction Co., Granite City, was low bidder at $71,553 (estimate: $107,000) for grading and surfacing on park roads in Horseshoe Lake State Park, Madison County.

Edwards Construction Co., Edwardsville, was low bidder at $23,738 (estimate: $248,000) for 2½ mile resurfacing for left turn lanes on Illinois 159 at Glen Carbon Crossing Road in Glen Carbon.

MacLair Asphalt Co., Collinsville, was low bidder at $664,303 (estimate: $706,000) for 1.4 miles of asphalt paving on Illinois 111 between Illinois 157 and Illinois 111.

Funding application deadline set

Agencies wishing funding from the 1987 Old Newsboys Fund should send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Old Newsboys Fund Application, Suburban Journals, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, 63131.

Agencies planning to request money raised by the sale of the special Old Newsboys editions of the Suburban Journal must file a form before the request can be considered. The deadline for filing an application for money is Nov. 9.

Copies of the form and criteria can be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Old Newsboys Fund Application, Suburban Journals, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, 63131.

Levee line might operate in fall

Service on Bi-State's downtown Levee Line probably will be provided through at least part of the fall and holiday season, transit committee members said Sept. 8.

Downtown merchants, impressed by the line's success at encouraging downtown movement, have requested that the agency extend service through Jan. 3, 1988. Unless Bi-State approves more funding for the line, service will end Oct. 4.

Officials at Bi-State have also been encouraged by the line's success. The route provides service between Union Station and the riverfront, connecting many downtown attractions, and has proved successful at garnering both local and tourist passengers.

The line operates from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and noon to 6 p.m. Sundays.

National to upgrade security

Officials of National Super Markets and the Barrington-Bryce Detective Agency will review security procedures used at the grocery chain's local stores in the wake of last Friday's execution-style slaying of five people at a North St. Louis store.

"We will re-examine the security to determine if there is a more effective way to protect the stores and employees," said Al Cross, National vice president and division manager.

"The security will be reviewed by Barrington-Bryce and National in a cooperative effort," said Kermit Stengel, vice president of the detective agency, which provides security personnel for six local National stores. "Any time we have an incident, we always review our procedures to make sure we offer the best possible protection. In our business, we review our procedures daily and are constantly upgrading the way we do our job."

Three National employees, a Barrington-Bryce security guard and a Building Butlers Inc. janitor were killed and two other National employees were wounded but survived the attack at the store, at 4331 Natural Bridge Ave. The victims were forced to lie face down between the customer service counter and the check out lanes and were shot. The killings occurred after two men who apparently posed as floor cleaners entered the closed store about 10:30 p.m. Cross said National has always provided armed security at the National Bridge store, "but we can't protect the neighborhood."

Trust started for victims' families

A general trust fund has been established through Central Bank for the families of the victims in last Friday's murder/robbery at the National supermarket, 4331 Natural Bridge Ave.

Checks should be made payable to the National Victims Family Trust, P.O. Box 267, M. Station 11-01, St. Louis, 63166.

New waste guidelines released

Local companies that deal with hazardous waste are facing new requirements by the federal government, according to the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council.

Among the new requirements is the designation of someone to serve as the company's emergency coordinator as part of an emergency planning process.

Gateway officials urge firms that produce, use or store hazardous wastes in amounts specified by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to contact EPA offices in Kansas City for a copy of the Title III (Section 302) list of extremely hazardous substances.

Companies should designate their coordinator and inform East-West Gateway of the coordinator by Sept. 17, agency officials said.

County woman wants Bakkers running at PTL

Vicki Goodman Meadows, who heads a national volunteer organization to return television evangelist Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker to the PTL ministry, said the group has kicked off a fund-raising campaign to help achieve its goal.

A Madison County housewife, Meadows said she is confident the Bakkers will return to PTL, which stands for Praise The Lord, by December.

She recently returned to her home in Collierville after spending three days in prison for organizing the Bring Bakkers Back Club, headquartered at the Holiday Inn in Fort Mill, S.C. She was going back there during September.

White Meadows has been using time at home to get her children ready for the new school year and to spend time with her husband, who has been in the phone with other volunteers, attorneys or the Bakkers every day, discussing strategy.

The Bring Bakkers Back Club recently accepted a letter to about 150,000 supporters seeking a minimum donation of $25. In the letter, Meadows said, "We must now stand together and combine our efforts to renew and restore the dream that God placed in the minds and in the hearts of Jim and Tammy Bakker."

Since the club began efforts in July, Meadows said it has received $15,000 in unsolicited donations which have been used to defray postal expenses.

So far, the group's expenses have been minimal, Meadows said.

The hotel charges the group a nominal rental rate. A printer, who is a lifetime partner of PTL, is not charged for printing — only the cost of the paper.

A copier has been made available to the club at no expense.

The various donations and reduced costs have convinced Meadows that God has given the means for the club to continue its efforts. "God has gone before us and has opened every door," she said.

Bakker stepped down from the helm of his ministry in March after an alleged sexual and financial encounter with a former church secretary, Jessica Hahn, seven years ago. He placed the ministry in the hands of the Rev. Jerry Falwell.

Meadows is convinced that Falwell organized a master plan to take control of the PTL ministry.

Meadows does not like to discuss the encounter between Bakker and Hahn. Most people consider the incident a dead issue, she said, one that is "under the blood (of Jesus) and forgiven."

Meadows describes Falwell as a dangerous man who craves political power. She wants people to tell Falwell he can't continue to obtain PTL, she says.

Police, court news

Illinois, Missouri among states with 65 mph limit

As motorists prepare for vacation trips or begin their return home for fall holidays or their work or school responsibilities, they will find three-fourths of the states have moved up the speed limit on rural sections of interstate highways.

The AAA-Auto Club of Missouri has closely monitored the actions of state legislatures and transportation departments throughout the nation, so that travelers can be advised of any change in the speed limit along rural sections of interstate highways. As of Aug. 17, 1987, 36 states now permit 65 mph on rural portions of interstate highways.

Congress authorized states to increase their speed limit to a 65 mph on rural interstates in April of this year.

The Auto Club cautions that the new speed limit applies only on rural sections and only in those states which have taken action to increase their speed limit.

Speed signs are posted showing the areas affected by the new limit. States raising their speed limit will place greater emphasis on enforcement of the new limit.

States with 65 mph speed limits on rural interstates are: Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Granite City police

Arrested for burglary; others being questioned

Gerald L. Pacheco, 17, of 2045 Edison Ave., was arrested after he and another少年 were caught burglarizing a home and a 16-year-old and a 15-year-old are being questioned in connection with two auto burglaries and a check forgery on Sept. 7.

Pacheco was arrested after police were told he was trying to sell a radio in the downtown area. After Pacheco and two youths were questioned and told they would be taken to the police station, Pacheco allegedly removed a stereo power booster.

Tom Crook, of Bunker Hill, had reported early Sept. 7 that someone had entered his van while it was parked in a Granite City Steel parking lot, at 16th Street and Madison Avenue. Inside, a stereo power booster, Kenis Skinning of Troy, said someone entered his car, parked at 16th Street and Grand Avenue, early the same morning and took a checkbook.

Betty Lesky, an employee of Culver's Drive-In, Madison Avenue, said a juvenile had placed a food order and then had given her a check supposedly signed by Skinner. When she refused the check, the youth left and threw the check under the building. Police were unable to retrieve the torn check.

Pacheco was released on his own recognition.

Man arrested at jail

Donald W. Craig, 30, of 1679 Third St., Madison, was booked last week at the Madison County jail on a 1987 Granite City warrant alleging he left the scene of an accident.

Suede jackets taken

Schermer's Men's Shop, 10 Crossroads Plaza, reported Sept. 3 that two suede jackets, valued at $150 each, were missing. The employees never discovered after a customer left who had been in the dressing room.

Driverless car crosses street, hits fence, shrubs

The driverless car of John G. Domicina, 1339 Meridian Ave., rolled down a driveway, across a street, up an opposite curb and struck a fence owned by Robert Shishmanian at 2001 13th Street. No one reported damage to a fence, gate, shrubs and 15 feet of cyclone fence.

Domicina said he had left his car running in the "park" position when it jumped out of that gear and into reverse at 10:35 a.m. Sept. 9.

Driver, passengers hurt

Driver Clarence L. Kelly, 27, and passenger Debby S. Kelly, both of 2252 Grand Ave., and passenger Debbie K. Heavilon, 2013 Johnson Road, were all injured, but not hospitalized, at 8 p.m. Tuesday when they were turning left in the 2000 block of Johnson Road. The other motorist in the collision was Tracie L. Green, 2813 Wabash Ave.

Two vehicles struck in Venice, driver arrested

David L. Free, 45, of 636 Broadway, Venice, was charged Sept. 7 with driving under the influence of alcohol and illegal transportation of alcohol when arrested following an accident in the 1300 block of Klein Street.

Free was driving north on Klein when it is alleged the auto spun around in the road and struck the parked car of Eugene Williams, 1717 Constitution, at 12:45 a.m. Sept. 12. After Wood was helped from his auto, the patrolman said he discovered beer bottles.

Taken to the police station, he allegedly struck an officer with his elbow.

Auto strikes parked car

George E. Flack, 63, of 2651 E. 23rd St., was arrested for driving while under the influence of alcohol after his car, going south in the 2700 block of Myrtle Avenue, struck the parked auto of Lawrence Schulz of Edwardsville at 1:44 p.m. Sept. 12.

Man charged in Grafton

Brian Brown, 33, of 210 Wilson Park Lane, was charged Sept. 5 in Grafton with driving under the influence of alcohol, driving with a revoked license and possession of cannabis. Authorities stopped Brown at East Main and Brown in Grafton.

Safety Pup: Granite City patrolman Curt Walkenbach (aka Officer Friendly) tries on a "Super Pup" puppet for size as Kevin Frye, left, of the National Child Safety Council, and Chief of Police Bob Astorino watch. The puppet is being provided to the Officer Friendly program by the national group and local merchants to aid Walkenbach in educating school children about child safety and alcohol and drug abuse.

Safety Pup helping Officer Friendly

As another school year begins, the Granite City Police Department's continuing the Officer Friendly Program in local schools.

Patrolman Curt Walkenbach, known also as "Officer Friendly," will be presenting a series of programs at area schools, concerning "Child Safety, Drug Abuse and Alcohol Abuse."

A new addition to the program this year will be a special puppet — Safety Pup, Walkenbach said.

Safety Pup is being provided by the National Child Safety Council and area merchants.

Madison buys computer, used police cars for city

By Donna Kimbro
Staff Writer

MADISON: Aldermen approved the purchase of a standby computer, to cost $1,500 from Cencom Cable Co. at a City Council meeting Sept. 8.

The computer is to support the city's existing alarm system and security program.

Mayor John Bellicoff said the To-Com Co., located in Texas, will phase out making parts for the present type of computer within a year.

"The computer we are using now was purchased 10 years ago for $5,000 and is still being used, but we may not be able to secure parts if they are needed," he said.

Delbert Sipes, alarm director, will check the computer and make sure it is compatible with the one we have. The parts alone are worth from $5,000 to $6,000. The computer has never been uncased and is like new," Bellcoff said.

Councilmen also approved the purchase of two 1985 Dodge automobiles from Golden Auto Sales to be used by the police department.

The two cars will cost a total of $5,000 and were formerly used by a security company, the mayor said, but were not able to be installed for use by the officers.

Judge jails lawyer

A lawyer was jailed Sept. 4 on a motion to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court. He was ordered released later that day by another judge.

The lawyer, Rod Lavin of East Alton, was arrested early that morning, officials said. Court records indicate Lavin lost a $2,500 default judgment to a former client in May.

Associate Judge Clayton Williams said he issued a body attachment for Lavin because Lavin had not satisfied the judgment and had not responded to citations to discuss assets.

Lavin was held in lieu of a $15,000 bond set by Williams.

Associate Judge Edward Ferguson ordered Lavin released in the afternoon on a $3,000 recognizance bond.

Ferguson said he modified the body attachment because Lavin's attorney, Rod Pitts, said a tentative settlement of the original dispute had been worked out.

Lavin has law practice in Missouri.

Traffic, warrant arrest

Douglas Corvey, 20, of 1308 Eighth Street, was stopped at 16th and State streets at 11:37 p.m. Sept. 8 and charged with speeding, a Madison County warrant for theft and a Granite City warrant for driving without a valid driver license. He posted $204 bail.

Woman arrested at plaza

Rhonda Graham, 25, of 1540 Kirkpatrick Homes, was arrested at 2:06 a.m. Sept. 8 at the Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza and charged with criminal trespass to land. She posted $100 bail; and was released at 3:16 a.m.

Arrested on 4 charges

An argument at 2050 Edwsville Road resulted in the arrest of Yelona Loftis, 19, of Collinsville at 1:49 a.m. Sept. 7. She allegedly voiced threats and profane threats against two women, Vicki Wise and Lorretta Wall, and was placed in wrist restraints.

Loftis was charged with assault, resisting a peace officer, disorderly conduct and criminal damage to property. She alleged that Loftis damaged her mobile home by pulling the skirt that encircled it, uprooted flowers and defaced fresh paint on the home.

Business briefs

Some needn't claim property

A new law allows for the exemption of more than 18,000 small businesses from the unclaimed property reporting requirement. It takes effect immediately.

"Senate Bill 458 will get government off the backs of small firms which contribute only one-half of one percent of the proceeds collected under the unclaimed property reporting act," said Gov. James Thompson.

"Examples of unclaimed property include bank accounts, paychecks and other financial assets that have been dormant for a period of seven years."

"Most small businesses do not have unclaimed property to report. The exemption will save these businesses the standard $35 accounting fee and cut back on associated bureaucratic paperwork, saving the state money," he said.

Wilcock chairman of A.O. Smith

Bill W. Wilcock was named chairman of the A.O. Smith Automotive Products Co. on Sept. 8.

Wilcock, 43, succeeds Paul J. Kemp, who retired Aug. 31 after nearly 40 years with the company.

As chairman, Wilcock will oversee A.O. Smith's largest unit, with three U.S. facilities, including a plant in Granite City, and nearly 6,000 employees.

The Automotive Products Co., which manufactures structural products for passenger cars, light trucks and heavy trucks, had sales of $55.9 million in 1986.

In announcing Wilcock's promotion, A.O. Smith President Robert J. O'Toole said, "I'm confident Bill Wilcock will provide the leadership to continue Automotive's position as the pre-eminent manufacturer of structural components in North America."

Management program slated

The Small Business Development Center of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, and the Small Business Energy Management Program will host an energy management resource seminar.

The half-day meeting is scheduled Friday, Sept. 18, at 8 a.m. in the Collinsville Hilton Conference Center, 1000 Eastport Plaza Drive, Collinsville.

Financed by funds repaid to Illinois by oil companies as a result of a federal oil overcharge court decision, the seminar will provide information on financial and technical assistance available through the energy management resource program, local utility service provider programs and the Illinois Small Business Utility Advocate Office.

The seminar is free. Registration is required. For further information, call 692-2929.

Rules for children alone at home

By Janet R. Burnett
Home economics adviser

When a new school year begins, we often hear teachers talking about classroom rules. These rules are part of family rules, too. But children's perceptions of the rules may differ from their parents' ideas.

A clear understanding of the rules is especially important when children spend time alone at home.

Youngsters may be unaware of parental guidelines because the rules were poorly explained, unclear, seldom enforced or merely forgotten. Rules are more likely to be followed when they are clearly stated and agreed on by all family members.

In order to follow a rule, the child must first understand what is required by that rule. The youngster must understand what needs to be done, how it should be done, and when it should be done.

For example, telling a child, "Don't eat a snack too soon before dinner and don't be allowed" doesn't provide the child with enough information to know what parents really expect. How long is too soon before dinner? And which specific foods are off-limits?

A more reasonable rule might be, "Snacks must be chosen from the list posted on the refrigerator, and must be eaten by 4:00."

This rule allows the child some choice, especially if he or she helped choose the allowed snacks. And it clearly specifies what the evening is about.

Consequences for following or not following the rule should be clear and immediate.

Positive consequences, in which the child is allowed something desirable for following the rule, are often effective. For example, "After you finish your chores, you may watch TV for a half-hour" provides a positive statement about what is expected as well as an incentive for completing the task.

Child-development experts agree that such enticements can sometimes make it easier for children to abide by the rules, but that can backfire if parents aren't careful.

If used too often, or if the importance of the task isn't stressed enough, offering rewards can give the message that the reward is really the most important thing.

When they are used, "negative consequences" should be closely tied to the situation and should occur very quickly. For example, a child who does not clean up after a snack may have to wash and dry the dinner dishes that night, rather than just wash them.

Children are most likely to follow the rules if they are aware of the reasons behind those rules, and if they were involved in establishing them.

Good rules have good reasons. If parents can't explain the reason behind the rule, it should be eliminated.

Even when there is a good reason, children may not be able to understand why the rules are arbitrary. Helping the child understand the reasons for rules may eliminate some of his or her opposition to them.

In addition, children who are given reasons for rules are more likely to see them as necessary. When that happens, they start to develop a sense of self-regulation that's important for growth and beliefs they think are important.

Most children appreciate the chance to share in family rule-making, and respond by following the rules they helped establish. Including a child in such discussions won't always be easy.

When a disagreement arises, try to understand exactly what the child objects to before responding. Look for ways to compromise. If the discussion seems to be going nowhere, you may have to take "time out" to let tempers cool and provide some time for everyone to think of new solutions.

Once the rules are established, it's beneficial to post them where the youngsters can see them.

This will help them remember the rules and will prevent family arguments over what the rules really say.

Money lacking to help young pupils headed for failing grades

SPRINGFIELD — A need for Illinois to increase its support for early childhood education programs for at-risk children — and remediation programs for truants — and dropouts has been underscored by the release of a national report calling for greater attention to the needs of these children.

According to Ted Sanders, Illinois superintendent of education, a clear link between poverty and learning problems has taken on sharper meaning in light of the growing number of children born and raised in poverty.

The Committee on Economic Development on Sept. 8 released "Children in Need: Investment Strategies for the Educationally Disadvantaged."

The committee advocated a "bottom-up" strategy that "views the individual school as the place for meaningful improvements" and "provides children in need with a better start and a boost toward lifelong success."

Sanders said, "This report joins numerous studies which show that Illinois is doing the right things to improve education."

"It is also very clear that we must find the financial resources to allow us to do the right things in future years," Sanders said.

In the meantime, however, Illinois also provides remedial services for potential truants and dropouts — some 38 students daily — left schools.

In 1985-86, a $10 million appropriation from the state supported 60 programs — 22 truants' alternative programs and 38 optional educational programs — serving about 24,000 students.

With the same level of funding for 1986-87, only 57 programs were funded, serving 42,000 students.

A 10 percent cut below last year's budget, plus a 10 percent reduction in 1987-88, resulting in 55 programs being funded, he noted.

Sanders said that implementing programs requires money. "It's becoming more complicated because the state has severely underfunded all school programs, including mandated categorical programs such as special education, which serves another group of at-risk students, and general state aid."

Area physician gets academy fellowship

CHICAGO — Reza S. Ashraf, M.D., Granite City, has been elected to fellowship in the American Academy of Pediatrics.

The committee, which consists of the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board, will hear a complaint by the Faculty for Collective Bargaining, one of three groups seeking to represent faculty and staff in working conditions in the period between filing of a petition for a collective bargaining election and the holding of the election.

The PCB claims SIUE discontinued "flex-time" scheduling for employees of its Office of Academic Counseling and Advising. The employees also were told they would no longer be allowed to prepare for or teach classes during their regular work week, according to the complaint.

The complaint alleges the changes constituted violations of the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Act, which bars changes in working conditions in the period between filing of a petition for a collective bargaining election and the holding of the election.

Benjamin Quillian Jr., assistant vice president for personnel of its Office of Academic Counseling and Advising, said there has been a preliminary investigation of the allegations.

The American Academy of Pediatrics is an organization of 32,000 pediatricians dedicated to the health, safety and well-being of infants, children, adolescents and young adults.

'We the People' meant 'We the men'

By David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

"We the People"—a phrase that once really meant "We the Men," begins the Preamble to the Constitution.

"Virtually nothing in the original constitutional text and debates directly addresses the situation of women and families," says A. A. Law, a New York University law professor of law, explained at a recent Smithsonian symposium on the Constitution. At that time, the document's concept of "men" denied the liberty, equality and even personhood of women," she said. And so the "original intent" of the Founding Fathers does not provide answers to today's problems. On the other hand, Law offered, the men intended the constitutional "spirit" of experimentation to continue and grow.

Correspondence between John and Abigail Adams in 1776 reveals that his "deafening silence" was certainly an accident. From Boston, Massachusetts, on March 31, 1776, wrote John:

"...if long to hear that you have declared an independence... I am sure that the best Code of Laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you make I desire you would remember the Ladies, and be more generous and favorable to them in all your regulations. Do not put such unlimited powers into the hands of the Husbands."

John was not at all sympathetic to your extraordinary Code of Laws, I cannot but laugh... Depend upon it. We know how to repeat our Masculine system."

THE SIGNING of the Constitution on Sept. 17, 1787, is depicted in a 1940 Howard Chandler Christy painting located in the U.S. Capitol.

Adams' snippy response reflected the intellectual tradition of the time. The founding families were profoundly different from today's nuclear unit. Then, a woman's place was in the home. "Women were assigned, in the basic status, to perform the essential tasks of the household, from childrearing to soap and candlemaking.

Law said: The average white woman of the era bore more than seven children, black women ten or 11.

And yet, Law told the audience, it is possible to tell another, very different, lesser-known story about family life of the era. As women got off to revolutionary battle, the women assumed responsibility for maintaining home and property. They quartered soldiers and provided refuge to displaced friends and relatives.

Women also played political roles during the Revolution—boycotting British goods and sometimes physically attacking the property of men who stocked enemy imports. They turned in lead weights from windows to be melted down for bullets. This was also generated the nation's first women's organization and political action when Benjamin Franklin's relatives petitioned door-to-door in support of the American cause. The signatures were then sent to Gen. Washington.

When active fighting subsided, women managed farms and businesses and dealt with the dangers of epidemics. Women began to recognize married women's property interests. Both men and women were allowed greater latitude in selecting their mates.

Although women were excluded from the constitutional debates just as plainly, women have always played a vital role in constructing our nation," Law stated. The challenge for the coming century is "to promote the liberty and equality of all people."

Parents can make school a team effort

By Jane Cosby
Correspondent

Have you been shopping lately for school? Books, clothes, pencils, paper, book bags, lunch boxes—and the like? Are you busy arranging car pools or after-school child care?

The yearly turmoil for families with young children is about to begin anew. But have you rearranged your furniture yet? You may have a few more things to do before sending the kids back to school.

Getting off to a good start in the new school year is important for all kids. For any child who has experienced problems in school, fresh starts are important. Take a few steps now to help your child do the very best in schoolwork.

Set up a study space in your house for your child. If necessary, move furniture and the television. Your child needs to have a quiet spot to study and read. The spot must be away from the distractions of television, radio and family noise.

A small table in a bedroom away from other family activity desks or work sites. Establish this area as the official study spot and do not allow any family member to violate the privacy and quiet of this area when it is being used.

Even kindergarten children are not too young to begin developing good study habits. Primary-age children who are not assigned homework can color or read books in the study area.

Since family schedules will be changing now, this is a good time to examine your child's television viewing. Set aside a certain amount of time your child watches television. By the time school gets into full swing the child could be weaned from it.

When the new shows come out in September, examine them carefully and discuss them with your child. Tell your child to choose one or two shows a night to watch. Emphasize that homework comes first; television second. This is a general rule of strictness. If necessary, videotape appropriate programs to watch when all homework is finished.

Sometimes in the first few weeks of school, parents attend their child's teacher. The first few days will be hectic and not conducive to getting acquainted.

Wait until things settle down a little for both the teacher and your child. Let them get to know each other.

When you meet your child's teacher let her know you are available to handle questions that may arise. Give her the phone number of both parents if no one is home during the day. Although this information may be your child's responsibility many teachers may be hesitant to use it except in emergencies.

Offer to help out at school.

Tax cheaters targeted in Illinois crackdown

Gov. James R. Thompson put tax cheats on notice Sept. 9 that the state will intensify its crackdown on those who are "picking the pocket of honest taxpayers."

Thompson sounded the warning to tax delinquents and tax evaders during a bill-signing ceremony in Chicago, where he penned three tax enforcement bills and unveiled the state's new enforcement initiatives aimed at slowing down tax cheats.

He said that even though budgetary constraints have forced the Department of Revenue to cut staff, the department will make the best use of its existing resources and will continue efforts to be tough on tax cheats.

"The state cannot afford to tolerate this blatant disregard for our state's tax laws," Thompson said.

"Tax cheaters cheat all honest taxpayers," he said. "In many instances, they're pocketing the sales taxes and withholding taxes they've collected from you and your neighbors. And that's stealing."

In other cases, the dishonest taxpayer may under-report income or sales — or perhaps file returns at all.

"Regardless of whether it's a business or an individual cheating, the end result is an unfair tax system where the honest taxpayer carries the full burden."

Thompson said the expanded enforcement efforts will include:

- Expansion of the current "Operation Padlock" under which the Department seizes the assets of taxpayers who continually refuse to pay their taxes.

- Development of a computer tracking system for tax-exempt taxpayers (persons who have unpaid tax debts from previous businesses and are attempting to start another business).

- Increased cooperation with other state agencies as well as other local and federal governmental units, including the Internal Revenue Service.

- Development of a pilot

assignment tracking and reporting system to accelerate collections of overdue taxes.

Maintaining the current audit staffing level and maximizing auditors' effectiveness through the use of computers by the field audit staff.

Expanded use of the automated telephone collection system.

Intensified efforts to expedite identification and prosecution of tax fraud cases.

State Revenue Director Roger D. Sweet said: "We have come to realize that the best way to combat tax evasion is to seek the resources and the tightened tax laws to enable the state to increase its ability to fully collect the taxes."

Thanks to the cooperative efforts of the legislature and other government leaders, as well as the support of citizens, we have been able to take an aggressive stand against those unscrupulous businesses and individuals who don't pay their share," he said.

Since 1981, the state has strengthened its tax laws over the past five years to help the Department of Revenue enforce those laws. Two programs, one of which was started in 1981, helped lay the foundation for the new enforcement strategies for the 1980s, Sweet said.

"The legislation Gov. Thompson is signing today helps close loopholes and anticipates some of the enforcement challenges for the coming years," he added.

Thompson signed the major administration-sponsored bill of the package. Senate Bill 1222, with various enforcement measures, and two other enforcement-related bills.

SB 1222 provides a crackdown on tax preparers who assist with fraudulent returns, stiffens penalties in some tax laws, an expansion of evidence which can be used in court to prosecute tax violators, and a strengthening of requirements of enforcement that are being sold or dissolved.

The bill also provides a penalty for persons filing frivolous returns or providing information that would delay or impede administration of tax laws; provides a fraud penalty for preparers, doctors and pharmacists who submit false tax-break applications; and allows the Department of Revenue to notify the Secretary of State when corporations are changing their names so that office can subsequently withhold renewal of the corporate charter.

It also strengthens lien provisions to require the state to use its lien collection process in our areas and to seek the resources and the tightened tax laws to enable the state to increase its ability to fully collect the taxes.

Funds will aid victim advocacy

Agencies in Illinois that help the victims of sexual assault and domestic violence are using state and federal funds to improve advocacy services and to develop new training programs, the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority has found.

Included are Volunteers of America, East St. Louis; Rape and Sexual Abuse Care Center, Edwardsville; call for help, Belleville; Oasis Women's Center, Alton; and Women's Center, Belleville.

Most of the federal Victims of Crime Act (VOCA) money — $325,000 cash for sexual assault and domestic violence — is being used to develop advocacy programs for victims at nearly 60 facilities statewide.

Sexual assault advocates assist victims both in seeking medical treatment and at court legal process.

"With positive support, victims can work effectively with advocacy programs and funds and criminal justice officials to increase the rate of successful prosecution of sex offenders and abusive partners," said Barbara McDonald, who administered funds for victims for the Authority, the state agency that oversees federal criminal justice and victims' programs in Illinois.

"On a case-by-case basis we have seen a marked improvement in the response of the criminal justice system to the needs of victims," she said.

McDonald said it is too early to say how much the program has improved, but that this year's figures should illustrate changes that have begun to occur.

The remaining VOCA money is being used by the CSA and the Illinois Coalition Against Domestic Violence to sponsor training seminars and victim education efforts for workers from member agencies around the state.

Both paid staff and volunteers are invited to participate in specialized statewide training programs, and scholarships are available for attendance at national conferences.

Education sessions are designed to help publicize victims' rights and to discuss the resources available to assist them.

Weatherization no longer will be paid

Gov. James R. Thompson on Sept. 4 signed legislation that limits funding for energy conservation and weatherization programs to government funds, thereby preventing increases in the utility bills of present rate-payers.

"Senate Bill 95 will hit the hardest first," said the Conservation Weatherization Program from Illinois utility ratepayers," Thompson said in a signing message.

I wish to clarify, however, that Bill 95 does not create an entitlement program. Funding for the Conservation Weatherization program is, like any other expense in government, subject to the availability of funds and the appropriation process.

It transfers responsibility for the weatherization program from the Illinois Commerce Commission to the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, which already operates a similar statewide program.

The bill limits funding for the program to government funds, including proceeds from the Exxon oil overcharge lawsuit.

Some of Alton mental hospital's abuse incidents were mishandled

SPRINGFIELD — A state report criticized handling of alleged physical abuse and a series of deaths involving patients at Alton Mental Health Center (AMHC).

The incidents occurred in 1984 and 1985 according to the evaluation of the center by the state inspector general's office.

It examined alleged abuse and neglect cases at all the state's mental hospitals last fall and early this year.

Among the allegations about AMHC cited in the report:

"Sexual conduct between a recipient and an employee."

"Whether an employee struck a recipient."

"A death investigation."

"An abuse of a recipient by an employee ('striking the recipient on the body with a plastic bat')."

"A death investigation of April 11, 1986."

The report said the abuse allegations were investigated in a complete and documented manner internally.

But it indicated they should also have been forwarded to the Department of State Police, Division of Criminal Investigation (DCI), for review.

Tom Richards, the center's director, said all abuse allegations at AMHC since around the end of last year have automatically been referred to state police.

survey was done and said he has not yet seen the report. He said he and other facility directors were to be briefed on it in Springfield.

The inspector general report also cited the lack of an autopsy report and no death review in a patient who died on Dec. 1, 1984. It said this reflected some level of concern that this death was insufficiently documented.

Richards said it has been a priority since then to call a medical review board on all deaths at the big mental hospital.

As a result of the inspector general's report, the Department of Mental Health has centralized its policies. Previously, procedures for handling alleged patient abuse or neglect complaints were determined by each institution.

A toll-free hotline for receiving complaints will also be set up and allegations will automatically be referred to state police.

Richards was not yet director when the inspector general referred him to Illinois State Police DII for evaluation.

Staff members at the Alton Mental Health Center are getting more intensive training now in avoiding potential patient abuse situations.

Richards said all direct care and support staff have completed initial eight-hour training sessions. Half the staff also has completed 10 hours training "dealing with escalation of behavior by aggressive clients."

"My philosophy is there has been too much focus on reporting and punishment of employees. There has to be additional training on positive interaction skills with clients," Richards said.

"We're seeing some positive signs now as a result of this training," he added.

Dick Dawdy, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees' union, local which represents most employees, praised the training sessions.

He said they were "pretty thorough." They include discussions on how to handle typical situations and what legally constitutes abuse.

"The law is very rigid. A lot of people probably didn't know that," Dawdy said.

He said most allegations of abuse were from situations when the patient was "acting out violently" and was being restrained.

A toll-free hotline for receiving complaints will also be set up and allegations will automatically be referred to state police.

Some 'secrets' for success

Often overlooked in the recipe for success are two crucial ingredients: pain and perseverance.

According to the September Reader's Digest, everyone has the making of success but can achieve it only by working at it.

1. "Want" power. Discipline means choices. Saying yes to goal or objective means saying no to many more. For example, hitting the gym would mean giving up pipe dream for Igor Gorin, the noted Ukrainian-American baritone, had he refused to give up his passion for pipe smoking.

2. Delayed gratification. A rainbow comes after the rain. The secret in achieving a goal is to first get past the pain and drudgery. Whether it's years of study or saving as simple as skipping a favorite television show to be wide awake for a morning business meeting.

3. Challenging balance. Never compromise discipline with rigidity. Take breathers — go for a walk, a snack — whatever revives and refreshes. Such rewards act as incentives for completing a task and help maintain momentum.

4. Self-development. Discipline is self-care, not self-castigating. Disciplined people are happier because they are fulfilling their goals and dreams.

5. Habit-changing strategies. Many people try to change a bad habit by focusing on an undesirable behavior instead of one to replace it. Instead, don't think about what you can't have, think about what you can.

6. Mind over matter. Don't wait until you're "in the mood." Motivation often doesn't come until after you have begun a task.

Township not hurt by fed's cuts

By David Rocks
PRJ Washington Bureau

O'Fallon Township has not been as hurt by recent cuts in federal money as many other American towns and townships did, Scheibel said.

But Township Supervisor Paul Nixon, Highway Commissioner Irene Heller and Trustee Virginia Scheibel said in an interview that the termination of the federal revenue sharing program, terminated last September, is necessary for the continued well-being of small towns.

The federal revenue sharing money is the money that we actually send to Washington and we should get it back," Scheibel said.

Local governments nationwide received about $4.6 billion yearly from revenue sharing until the program was cut last year.

While many other small towns have been hard hit by the program's termination, O'Fallon has not been forced to abandon projects put off for revenue sharing dollars.

reduced costs in other areas we have continued to fund these programs," Nixon said.

Scheibel noted, however, that while the township hasn't had to cut any programs yet it may soon be forced to do so.

NATAT is an organization of more than 13,000 towns and townships which represents the interests of American small towns in Washington.

Hamilton Brown, NATAT's executive director, said that many towns are being forced to make federal orders that they cannot afford to meet without revenue sharing money.

"There are an incredible number of expensive federal mandates that local governments are being forced to meet," Brown said.

Buente

Rheo (Byrnes) Buente, 84, of Granite City, died at 1:06 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 13, 1987, at Anderson Hospital in Mayville, where she was a patient for the winter.

III since March, she also was a resident of Eden Care Center, Edwardsville.

Mrs. Buente was born in Venice and was a lifelong resident of the Quad Cities. She was employed by the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio Railroad as a yard clerk for 49 years prior to retiring.

She was a member of St. Mark's Catholic Church, Venice, the Railway Employees Club, Venice Women's Club and Venice Senior Citizen Club and was active in church programs.

Her only survivor is her husband, Harry Buente.

Father Elzear Gehler celebrated his 90th birthday Tuesday at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Venice, with burial following at Calvary Cemetery, St. Louis. Irwin Chapel for Funerals, 2801 Madison Ave., was in charge of arrangements.

Nick Eloff

Eloff

Nick Eloff, 94, of Belleville, father of Helen Baran of Granite City, died at 10:25 a.m. Monday, Sept. 13, 1987, at Memorial Hospital in Belleville.

He was born in Greece and resided in Belleville for many years. Mr. Eloff was a boilermaker for the New York Central Railroad and later taught.

A member of Holy Trinity Bulgarian Eastern Orthodox Church in Madison, he was preceded in death by his wife, Katherine (Tomas) Eloff, April 1, 1980.

In addition to his daughter, Mrs. Helen Baran, Belleville; two sons, John Eloff, Sherman Oaks, Calif., and Jimmie Eloff, Fort Atkinson, Wis.; one sister in Greece; two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Visitation will begin at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Holten Funeral Home, 7711 West Main St., Belleville, where Father Peter Slambjord will officiate at 11 a.m. services Thursday. Burial will be at St. John Cemetery, Collinsville.

Gilmore

Joe N. Gilmore Sr., 44, of 1706 N. 43rd St., Washington Park, was found dead Tuesday, Sept. 1, 1987, in his home. A coroner's inquiry is pending.

He was born in Rienzie, Miss., and had been a resident of East St. Louis for 43 years. Mr. Gilmore was employed by the Peabody Coal Co. and was a member of the Galilee Baptist Church, Washington Park.

Survivors include his wife, Joyce Gilmore; six sons, Joe Gilmore Jr. and Tony, Carlton, Dindi and Joey Gilmore, and seven daughters, Shirley, Carolyn, Carol, Evette, Shelly, Latanya and Tara Gilmore, all of East St. Louis; nine grandchildren; his father, Tyrone Gilmore of Corinth, Miss.; six brothers, Jim Gilmore, Charles Gilmore and James Reiter; a son, Carl St. Louis; Lee Wayne, a son of North Carolina, Darryl Gilmore of Los Angeles, and Robert Robinson of Washington Park; and five sisters, Estella Smith, Paulette Spencer, Hattie Gilmore and Ethel Jackson of East St. Louis, and Gwendolyn Akins of Madison.

Funeral services were held on Saturday, Sept. 5, at the Galilee Central Baptist Church with the Rev. Albert Clegg officiating. Burial was at St. Gabriel's Cemetery, Millstadt. Officer Funeral Home, 1501 Winstanley Ave., East St. Louis, was in charge of arrangements.

Painter

Jennie (Linn) Painter, 89, of Belltown, Ill., formerly of the Quad City area, died at the Northside Nursing Center, Granite City Hall, Ill., on Thursday, Sept. 10, 1987.

She was born in Scott County, Ill., March 13, 1898. Mrs. Painter was preceded in death by her husband, Charles Earl Painter, in October 1958.

Survivors include one son, Orville Painter, Belltown; a daughter, Mrs. Thurlow (Eileen) Gray of White Hall; a sister in Springfield; eight grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; and nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church in White Hall.

Lee's robbery arrest made

A man suspected of being one of two masked men who robbed Lee's Famous Recipe Chicken, 316 Namoki Road, a day earlier last month was arrested Friday by four Granite City police officers.

Detective Don Knight said the robbery, 21, of 701 Ashland Ave., was charged with armed robbery. He was arrested at 1:15 p.m. at the mobile home of his sister at 323 W. Chain of Rocks Road.

Kirkover was identified as one of the robbers, according to Knight, who declined to reveal details of the case until the other suspect is arrested.

No weapon or money was recovered, Knight said. About $250 had been taken.

After the store had closed about 10 p.m. on Aug. 27, a man entered through a rear door at Lee's Chicken. One flourished a revolver and demanded money. The man with the gun struck the sign above the head and forced him to lie down in the dining room area.

They then fled east to Lindell Boulevard, where they got into a car.

Jobs sought for disabled

CHICAGO — Ronald J. Gidwitz, president of Helene Curtis Industries Inc., has joined Gov. James R. Thompson and Secretary of State Jim Edgar as co-chairmen of a committee of Illinois business leaders to promote the hiring of people with disabilities.

Gidwitz, chairman of the Economic Development Commission of Chicago, helped found the 43-member Illinois Jobs Committee to help put an end to high unemployment among members of the disabled work force.

Also appointed were William Swanson, Granite City Steel vice president and general manager, and Mary Kane, Southwestern Illinois Leadership Council executive director.

An estimated 1.5 million Illinoisans have disabilities and more than two-thirds of the disabled between the age of 16 and 64 are unemployed.

The unemployment rate among people with disabilities is the highest found among any group of Americans — a fact that Gidwitz and other leaders in the public and private sectors say they are determined to change.

Through the Illinois Jobs Committee, committee members hope to encourage employers to hire workers with disabilities by promoting their abilities.

Members include Robert G. AFL-CIO.

"It's not charity. It's just good business," Gidwitz tells employers, announced recently by the Department of Rehabilitation Services. The message is one of three which will be released this month to promote hiring people with disabilities.

The Illinois Jobs Committee was established in 1985 by Thompson and Edgar to work with businesses to discover ways of improving employment opportunities for people with disabilities.

Employers are being encouraged to list job openings or learn more about joining the Illinois Jobs Committee by calling toll-free 1-800-JOBS NOW.

He called the 1988 campaign underway because state legislators or representatives are seeking the post, although that is a typical line of progression for Congress. The race is therefore "wide open, in my opinion," he said.

Though he said he expects an uphill battle because he has lost the name recognition, finances and endorsements that Costello has, Mansfield said he is confident.

The Press-Record/Journal reported that Costello at that point had far exceeded those of his rivals. Costello also has been endorsed by the Illinois AFL-CIO.

Costello had collected $264,000 in campaign contributions as of campaign strategy would not change.

Henkhaus is a popular vote-getter in the county and would have been a formidable opponent, said Fields. He said he hoped many Henkhaus supporters would now help his campaign.

Price, 82, has said he will retire at the end of his term in 1988. He has held the seat since he was first elected in 1944. Fields said he would like to make his announcement in Venice.

Mansfield announced his campaign on Saturday at the closed Swift Meatspacking Plant.

Like Mansfield, Fields criticized Costello's huge lead among the candidates in campaign contributions.

"We know who's going to represent our congressional interests," Fields said, referring to Costello.

"It's an issue that we (other candidates) haven't brought up. It's an issue he (Costello) has gone out and boasted about," he said.

Fields said he has so far received less than $5,000 in cash contributions to his campaign, though he plans to soon file a campaign expenditure statement with the General Election Commission.

The FEC does not require a contribution report from congressional candidates until the contributions surpass $5,000.

Costello has received at least $264,000 so far in contributions, according to the FEC.

A balance of $101,594 may be expected, with the largest fund in June 1988, with small surpluses showing in the bonds and interest fund and transportation fund, Vickers said.

Estimated expenditures of $2,200,500 for the Venice public schools are about a 10 percent increase over last year's $2,009,338 budget, the superintendent said.

Anticipated receipts, revenues and transfers of $1,748,558 are expected for the public schools, Vickers said.

A $676,079 budget also was approved for Venice-Lincoln

June 30, according to a Federal Election Commission report. Mansfield and another unnamed candidate, Madison County Auditor Pete Fields had not filed campaign finance statements, so their contributions had not been tallied.

Mansfield said he will run a campaign based on his record.

"I have illustrated that I have the heart and understanding to be effective on the job," he said. "I have spent ... my adult life coming to good, honest government and helping others."

"I could be on each street and get a job in Washington. It is rolling the dice and biting the bullet for me," he said.

A Belleville resident, Mansfield graduated from Belleville with a high School. He earned a bachelor of science degree in justice and administration of justice and a master of arts degree in history from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

'Homework hotline' for Venice

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

VENICE — "I think it's a good program," said School Superintendent-elect Charles McCaskill, speaking of a new Homework Hotline program which starts this week.

"It motivates me," McCaskill said. "It's something good and I believe it will give the kids some incentive to do their homework."

The board agreed to join the hotline program being offered by St. Louis metropolitan area students kindergartners through 12th grade, under sponsorship of KMVO-TV Channel 4 and Domino's Pizza.

Sample textbooks used in the Venice district, concentrating on mathematics, science and English, plus a list of all text books used, will be provided.

Superintendent of Schools Robert L. Vickers said the hotline can be used as a unique and innovative program geared to provide help to students as well as parents, relating to school work before it comes to the problem.

No matter what the subject happens to be — math, reading, language arts, science or social studies — a phone call to the hotline can bring the answer.

A student can call and be assured of getting the right kind of assistance from basic elementary mathematics to advanced physics or chemistry, the spon-tors have explained.

Sending the phones will be free, and secondary teachers selected for expertise in subject areas and trained to respond to homework problems.

Venice students wanting help with homework may call 1-800-727-WORK (1-800-727-9675).

Principals at Venice High School and Venice Middle School have been advised of the district's cooperation, Vickers said.

"I should be interesting to see how it works out," he added.

McCaskill said the hotline can be used as a unique and innovative program geared to provide help to students as well as parents, relating to school work before it comes to the problem.

The goal of the Homework Hotline is to emphasize the importance of school and learning and to reinforce the importance of the independent practice of doing one's own work.

Old Newsboys sought Nov. 19

Last year, 200 children's agencies were especially grateful for Old Newsboys Day.

Because of the time and energy donated by more than 8,000 volunteers throughout the St. Louis metropolitan area, $236,238 was raised for the Old Newsboys Fund. The entire amount was given to groups and agencies that help children.

This year, William E. Corneil, president and chief executive officer of Union Electric Co., is expecting the same level of enthusiasm on Old Newsboys Day, Thursday, Nov. 19.

The Suburban Journals have carried on the 30-year tradition of Old Newsboys Day, which was initiated in 1957 by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Volunteers are establishing the tradition again.

The Suburban Journals have at the heart of the event, giving an hour or two of their time selling special editions of the newspaper.

Every cent collected goes to the Old Newsboys Fund for Children and is used to purchase items that will benefit children.

Over the past 30 years, $3.7 million has been raised. The money has gone to purchase such items as playground equipment, books, wheelchairs, shoes, clothing, bicycles, sports and recreation equipment and toys.

Old Newsboys participate in almost every community in St. Louis area. Some have been doing it for years; some will come forward for the first time this year. All are needed and there is a place for everyone who volunteers, Cornelius said.

New volunteers are encouraged to call (314) 821-0211 to sign up for a location. Former volunteers will receive a letter from Cornelius with a reservation card enclosed.

The deadline for volunteers is Oct. 30. Locations of those who have participated in the past will be held open until Sept. 30. After that date, cherished old corners are fair game for new volunteers, he said.

Some steps help homeowners clear air of formaldehyde fumes

Formaldehyde is a common place substance in most homes, and one that can cause health problems, said Sharon Bunn, housing specialist at University of Missouri Extension. But, she adds, homeowners can take steps to clear the air.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, almost everyone is exposed to formaldehyde at one time or another. Formaldehyde fumes can cause eye, nose and throat irritation, headaches, fatigue; and other flu-like symptoms, Bunn says. At low concentration levels it is a powerful irritant, she added. It is not known yet if it contributes to the incidence of cancer, she says.

"Formaldehyde first came to the public's attention in the mid-1970s when urethane-formaldehyde foam insulation (UFFI) was installed in many homes," Bunn says. "When installed improperly, the insulation sometimes gave off noticeable and noxious formaldehyde fumes, she said.

UFFI was banned in 1982, but again became legal for use in 1983. It remains one of the major contributors of formaldehyde fumes in many homes, Bunn says.

There are also many other sources of formaldehyde in the home, she says, citing the following: As a preservative and bonding agent, it may be found in kitchen cabinets, furniture padding and other wood products; carpets, certain paper products, plastics and even shampoo also may contain the substance.

Unlike radon, another potentially dangerous indoor pollutant, formaldehyde is often noticeable — giving off a strong, pungent smell. If formaldehyde is a problem in your home, you may already suspect it since there's more in the air than the smell of dinner cooking.

"About 20 percent of healthy adults may experience reactions from formaldehyde when there are only 0.25 parts per million (ppm) of formaldehyde in the air," says Bunn. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has established 0.1 ppm as a safe and comfortable level for formaldehyde in homes. This is still 10 times higher than the level of formaldehyde normally present in outdoor air, Bunn says.

People sensitive to formaldehyde may suffer irritation and other symptoms at levels below the HUD standard, she says.

Although formaldehyde fumes from objects decrease with time, homeowners will have to wait for the situation to clear. Bunn said they can take the following steps to clean the air in their homes:

• If the fumes are caused by UFFI that recently has been installed, the home can be fumigated professionally to clear the type of formaldehyde.

The Task Force to Study Long-Term Care Insurance, a group of legislators, state officials and public members appointed by Gov. James Thompson and the four legislative leaders, is conducting a series of statewide public hearings on long-term care insurance.

The hearings will permit members of the task force to solicit testimony from and consult with representatives of consumers, older Americans, providers of long-term care and representatives of the insurance industry concerning long-term care, how to provide for it and how they would pay for it.

Many older people have the misconception that the federal Medicare program will take care of such needs," Washburn said. "That simply is not the case and unfortunately, private insurance has not been a major source of funds for this type of care, either."

The task force has divided itself into five working subcommittees. The subcommittee on "Consumer Awareness," fumes. Another solution — removing the insulation completely — is costly and complicated and should be considered only as a last resort.

Improving ventilation is always important in homes that suffer from indoor pollution. Air out rooms periodically by opening windows and doors.

Of course, heat goes out with the fumes. A more efficient solution is to install a heat-to-air heat exchanger, a passive ventilation system or an air cleaner.

If you are purchasing a new carpet, check to be sure it does not contain formaldehyde because it does.

Paint UFFI unfinished pressed wood surfaces on cabinets and furniture with a visibly thick epoxy-based sealant or solvent-based paint.

Avoid bringing new products that contain formaldehyde into the home. For construction purposes, try whenever possible to use exterior plywood, hardboard, and oriented strand board rather than particle board and interior plywood. The former products make formaldehyde more present in the home.

For more information about indoor formaldehyde fumes and other home-related topics, contact your county Extension office.

Ask the dietitian

Dear Dietitian: How can I tell a good diet from a "fad" diet?

Answer: Use this checklist in evaluating the diet. If the diet can stand up to this test, forget it. It is a waste of time and might even be harmful to your health.

You will be eating a variety of foods rather than be limited to a few foods.

You will be eating foods from all four basic food groups: Meat, Starch/Fruit and Vegetables.

Calories should be no less than 1,000 calories a day unless closely supervised by a physician.

You can afford the diet.

You can stick to the diet for three to six months.

You will be eating at least three times a day.

You will be eating fewer calories and/or you will be getting more exercise.

You will learn some low-calorie ways to select and prepare foods.

To help further, most "fad" diets will fall into one of the following categories:

Fasting: Not eating food at all is dangerous because the body starts breaking down muscle to use as an energy source.

Calorie counting: Some are proposed for weight loss as fiber, kidney, and heart may suffer and decline in their ability to function properly.

Liquid Diet: Usually liquid products are adequate in protein and vitamins but very low in calories. They could cause the same problems as in fasting. Close medical supervision is essential.

Pills — Some are supposed to suppress the appetite; others claim to "burn" fat. Most are useless and some are dangerous habit-forming.

Low-Carbohydrate Diets — When carbohydrate is reduced in the diet, it upsets the body's chemical balance, causing water to be flushed out. While it appears the weight may be lost, most of it is water weight which will eventually be regained.

Single Category Diet — Those diets are characterized by eating one kind of food (e.g., only fruits, only vegetables, only rice).

No single food category provides enough nutrients to maintain a healthy body.

If you have any questions about a specific diet, contact a registered dietitian at your local hospital.

Reinhardt attends traction seminar

Dr. Michael C. Reinhardt of Reinhardt Chiropractic PC and his staff attended a chiropractic seminar held in Chicago and sponsored by Practice Management Inc., in a chiropractic management firm based in Pinellas Park, Fla.

Doctors from around the country attend to learn about newest treatment techniques available to chiropractic patients. The how and why of traction were among the topics covered in this seminar.

"Traction is especially valuable in the treatment of back pain, neck and shoulder problems, sciatica and auto injuries. Modern application indications, contra indications and specific treatment techniques using the state-of-the-art computerized Ortho-Combiv IV were covered," Dr. Reinhardt said.

Old Six Mile gets apple butter ready

The Old Six Mile Historical Festival will take place from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Sept. 19 and 20, on the museum grounds, according to Fred Jordan, general chairman of the event.

Apple cobblers, pies and other apple products will be on sale, along with apple cider, coffee and soda. Apple butter will be sold, beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Adult Scouts will prepare and sell barbecue pork steak sandwiches and plates, both days from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The Drusilla Andrews Chapter,

N.S.D.A.R., will be conducting dedication ceremonies for the presentation of an Illinois state flag donated by State Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Groton City, and also the granite plaque and American flag donated by the First Granite City National Bank.

Ceremonies will take place at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 20, with Linda Koenig and Barbara Williams in charge.

The community is invited to participate in all festivities and President Marguerite Lexow has announced that tours of the museum will be conducted from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Lexow also invites residents of the area to become members of the Old Six Mile Historical Society and has announced that volunteers are needed for Saturday's festival (Oct. 10-11). Call 931-3023 for assistance with maintenance of the museum grounds.

Regular monthly meetings, open to the public, are held at the Central Christian Church, 2020 Main Street, Roxana. Information can be reached by calling 931-0479, or Jordan at 931-2897. Special tours are available for groups through Christmas by calling Georgia Engelke, founder and curator, by calling 931-3023.

Extension Unit hears Catherine Mauck

The Granite City Unit Homemakers Extension heard the name of the month, the Nameki Presbyterian Church.

The meeting was opened with the Pledge of Allegiance by Chairman Vera Lynn. The program was led by the Rev. Steven Hill, the aim was led by Mary Thebeau.

Catherine Mauck, Madison County Extension advisor, gave a lesson on wall coverings. Coverings and Coverings to encourage homemakers to gain skill and confidence in selecting wall finishes for decorative value. She said design, material, care and upkeep are important, and decorative details, such as borders or stenciling, makes a difference, often a little. Wilma West, decorator and based on color, texture and pattern and what to use where and how to maintain. Color creates the mood of a room, and pattern sets the character, she said. Wall coverings create atmosphere and change the character of a space. There is also a wide variety of walls. Many wall coverings are stain resistant, scrubable and stripable. Borders are decorative additions on painted walls, as well as wall coverings. This trend is toward country style, and this year's color is mauve. In a survey, 60 percent preferred wall coverings to paint, Mauck said.

Twenty-nine members were present. Four guests, Mindy Weston, Dorothy Melvin, Jean Burns and Barbara Rogers, were welcomed. Adile Wazak thanked Mauck for the lesson, and also thanked September hostesses Wilma West, Irma Taylor and Louise Thompson for a dessert luncheon. Mary Radick, Grace Radock and Mary Bridick will be October hostesses.

District Meeting Chairman Marlene McLean announced the meeting will take place Nov. 17 at the Hope Lutheran Church, with 7 p.m. registration and a 7:30 meeting.

Walter Harschany, craft chairman, will have crafts at 10 a.m. before the October meeting.

The "Creating Christmas" project will be at 10 a.m. Nov. 6 at the Edwardville Legion Hall. Chairman announced they will be in need of crafts and bakery items that day.

The attendance prize was won by Erma Taylor. Vera Lynn led the Homemakers Creed, and the meeting was adjourned.

An Eagle birthday party will be held Sept. 19, and a meeting of District 7 will be held in Alton on Sept. 20, where an election of officers will be held.

Prizes were won by Florence Hagnauer and Marilyn Laycock.

Donation made to school

GRANITE CITY—Acteen, a ministry for girls ages 7-12 and affiliated with Emmanuel Baptist Church, 1800 Pontoon Road, donated 70 school supply packets to Marshall Elementary School students.

In each of the double-pocket folders were a spiral notebook, notebook paper, a box of crayons, a large pencil, a pencil with eraser, a pen and a bottle of glue.

Acteen members are Stephanie Cathey, Holly Eugea, Beth Williams and Diane Gartner.

They study foreign and home missionaries. Acteen, organized for quality missions education, is a segment of the General Assembly of the United Methodist Church which is celebrating its 100th anniversary in 1988.

In order to reach levels of achievement in Acteen, members must complete various requirements.

Co-leaders Susan Montgomery and Liz Cathey said: "Mission action work is one of the projects the girls like best. The donation of the school supply packets to Marshall School children is in the mission action category. Acteen members earned money to purchase the school supplies through two different projects: a can dash and a spaghetti dinner. The fund raising projects were also supplemented by donations from church members.

Susan Montgomery and Liz Cathey said: "The girls were excited about this project. They really like the kids and they wanted to help them."

Both Stephanie Cathey and Eugea agreed.

"It was fun," they said. "We liked doing it."

Schnuck's Markets donated individual plastic bags to hold the school supply packets.

Liz Cathey said the school was recommended to her by Joyce Kotoff, owner of Class "E" Hair Styling, who gives free haircuts to Marshall students on a monthly basis.

Marshall Principal Goni Michaeloff said one of us at Marshall appreciates the Acteen who with this donation showed their concern in stimulating student interest in learning."

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rowden

Rowdens mark 30th year

Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. (Mary Katherine) Rowden, 2253 Dahl Street, celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary at a dinner-dance reception hosted by their families at St. Gregory Hall. During the celebration, the couple received their wedding vows.

They were married July 13, 1959, at the First Congregational Church of Dupu. The Rev. A. Ralph Lynn, then pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in the city, officiated at the service.

In August 1959, Mr. and Mrs. Rowden moved from Carbondale to Granite City where both accepted employment with School District 9. He is a counselor at Granite City High School, and she is a kindergarten teacher at Maryville School.

Family members who hosted the event for about 180 guests, included Mrs. A. A. Rowden, mother of Rowden; Mr. and Mrs. Jeff (Anne) Luner and children, Justin and Jared of Colinsville; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Darnell, their children, Caitlin and Sarah; Mr. and Mrs. Randy (Julie) Schrenk and children, Kristen and Kara, all of Granite City; Mr. and Mrs. Greg (Patsy) Rowden of New London, Pa., and Ronald Rowden of Dixon, Ill.

The honorees took a second honeymoon in London and Paris in August.

Fresh fruit choices still abound

Summer food style can last with a light, zesty dessert of fresh grapes and sherbet or sorbet. As summer ends, many people also think it is nearing the end of an abundance of fresh fruit. But grapes' season is in full swing. Grapes shipment from California began mid-May and continue through January.

This is an especially good year for grapes. As the third largest crop ever, it is expected to produce 53 million boxes of grapes, so it will be easy to include them when planning fall menus.

Easy and quick to prepare, Grape Melon Frost is a simple combination of just five ingredients—grapes in choice of color, fruit sherbet or sorbet, melon balls and garnishes, accented with candied ginger. A few simple steps is all it takes.

For breakfast, let grapes provide the base for granola and about nine choices of grapes in markets now, the decision is up to the home chef. Red, green or blue/black grapes add a versatile accent to this dessert and to menus throughout the season.

With 13 varieties of grapes available throughout the season and about nine choices of grapes in markets now, the decision is up to the home chef. Red, green or blue/black grapes add a versatile accent to this dessert and to menus throughout the season.

Grape melon frost

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup orange juice
1 cup fresh grapes, by 1-1/2 inch candied ginger, quartered cup (about 3 oz.) red, green or blue/black grapes, halved, seeded if necessary
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup melon balls
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup lime or other flavor sherbet small grape clusters for garnish, if desired

Combine orange juice and ginger. Add grapes and melon balls. Marinate 1 hour. Remove grapes.

Serve fruit with sherbet. Garnish with grape clusters. Makes 2 servings.

Grape granola Breakfast Treat

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup green seedless grapes
2 tbsp. granola
2 tbsp. plain yogurt
Small grape cluster

Place grapes in cereal bowl. Sprinkle with almost all the granola. Top with yogurt. Garnish with remaining granola and grape cluster. Makes 1 serving.

Cheese and grape salad

3 cups lightly packed torn spinach
1 cup grapes, halved, seeded if necessary
3 oz. Swiss cheese, cut in thin strips
3 oz. cheddar cheese, cut in julienne strips
Mustard Dressing

Arrange spinach, grapes and Swiss and cheddar cheeses on individual serving plates or platter. Spoon Mustard Dressing over each. Makes 4 servings.

Mustard Dressing: Combine $\frac{1}{4}$ cup oil, 2 tablespoons cider vinegar, 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard, 1/2 teaspoon powdered sugar, 1/2 teaspoon seasoned salt and dash of pepper. Mix well. Stir in 1 tablespoon sliced green onion and 2 slices crumbled crisp, cooked bacon.

Refrigerate, covered, several hours or overnight. Mix thoroughly before serving. Makes about $\frac{1}{2}$ cup.

Frozen vegetables go as salad or side dish

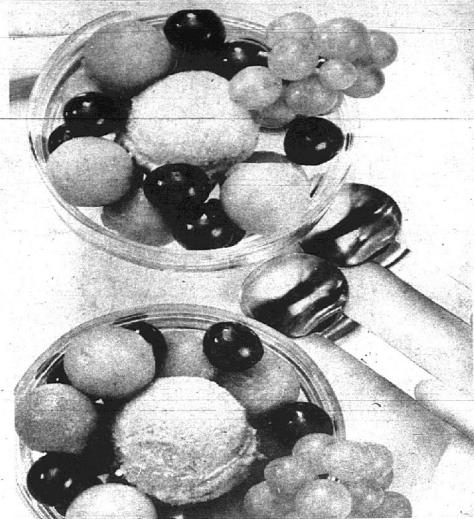

Sprinkle grated cheese on hot, cooked and drained frozen broccoli, cauliflower or asparagus.

Add thawed and drained frozen peas, corn, mixed vegetables or any frozen vegetable base to rice or rice dish. This can be a side dish or a salad.

Add thawed and drained frozen peas, green beans, cut broccoli or mixed vegetables. Serve as a marinated salad or as a topping for tossed green salads.

Coffee tree gives its all for morning treat

The annual harvest of an entire coffee tree is required for a single pound of ground coffee.

FRUIT DESSERTS are complete with the addition of fresh grapes designed in a variety of colors.

Linguine with stir-fried vegetables

8 oz. linguine, uncooked
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 cup cooking water
1/2 clove garlic, minced
2 cups diagonally sliced yellow cup diagonally sliced celery
1/2 cup basil
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 cup sliced mushrooms
cup cherry tomatoes

Gently add linguine to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook, uncovered and stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. In large skillet, heat oil. Add garlic, squash, celery, basil, salt and pepper. Stir-fry about 6 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender. Add mushrooms and tomatoes. Stir-fry about 4 minutes or until heated through. Serve with linguine. Makes 4 servings.

Easiest chicken divan

1 pkg. (10 1/2 oz.) frozen prepared chicken breast patties
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen broccoli with cheese sauce
2 English muffins, split, toasted

Silvered almonds, toasted (optional)
Heat frozen chicken patties according to package directions.

Keep warm. Meanwhile, cook broccoli with cheese sauce according to package directions. Keep warm.

For each serving, place 1 hot chicken patty on an English muffin half. Spoon one-fourth of broccoli mixture on top. Sprinkle with a few toasted almonds. Serves 4.

CLASSIC BEAUTY: A pagoda pokes above a roof-top.

Two must-see attractions on tourist's trip to China

By Pamela Selbert
Journal correspondent

The first thing in China — you cannot be a hero without climbing the Great Wall and no climb is complete without a boat ride down the Grand Canal. On a recent visit to China we did both.

I'll have to admit that walking on the Great Wall doesn't feel like a bit of a hike and sputtering through a thickly crusted harbor, passing crumbling buildings nearly as old as time, provides little satisfaction.

China's Grand Canal (called Da Yume) existed originally not as one continuous waterway, but as a series of interlocking projects. The first of these was dug by King Fu-hsi in 2850 B.C. and was demolished in 480 B.C. by King Wu to facilitate movements of troops in the north of China.

Today the canal runs from Beijing, the capital (formerly known as Peking) to Hangzhou (halmo jo), a distance of almost 1,300 kilometers. In recent years parts of it have not been used, eclipsed by roads, and only about half is now navigable.

However, as the canal has recently become popular as a tourist attraction, a major government project is under way to dredge and return it to its original usefulness. Still, some 400 million acres of land are irrigated by canal water and about 70 percent of the food in the city of Wuxi two sites located south of Beijing does so via the canal.

Our boat, the "Mei Riang," waited us at 5 a.m. one morning and we boarded. Wuxi is very long, plank less than two feet wide. The board spanned a yawning gap between shore and boat over canal water. Luckily, the ship's mates were there, grasp our hands, smiling. We knew immediately what the nature of the trip would be, and we were not disappointed.

We were free to roam the boat, and spent much time in the stern, watching patios, balconies and windows go by. Many aspects of Chinese life were evident. People ate, prepared meals, hung laundry and enjoyed a chat over a cup of tea. A water's edge, someone tried washing clothes in filthy canal water, while others emptied huge volumes of trash and garbage into the water.

Retreating once to the lounge where apples and oranges were sweetly offered, I was introduced to the boat's captain, Chang Fu-Bao. Learning I was a writer, he gave a thumb's up gesture, a large grin, and promptly invited me to join him in the pilot house.

He spoke no English, and I, of course, no Chinese, but our guide came along and was our interpreter. For 30 years, Chang said, he'd made this trip from Wuxi to Suzhou (soo jo) every day.

Side by side, we watched the steady stream of boats passing by all of them small freighters, carrying bricks, coal, gravel, limestone, straw and concrete blocks.

Shortly before our 3½-hour trip ended, we arrived in Suzhou. Captain Chang gave me a small brown clay teapot.

Proudly he explained that it had come from Yi Ching, near Wuxi, and was good for brewing green tea. Also, he added, it might prompt a happy remembrance of our visit to China and of our "complete-ness" for having made the boat trip down the canal.

Travelers' advisory guards against unnecessary repairs

When taking weekend trips and vacationing motorists should be alert to auto repair shops and service stations that overcharge for services or recommend unnecessary repair work, the American Automobile Association (AAA) warns.

AAA said the majority of service stations and repair shops do not engage in these practices, but AAA said it found where the problems may exist, particularly for out-of-state travelers.

The most frequent victims of rip-off artists are traveling motorists with children and the elderly, AAA noted.

Complaints from motorists involve incidents where service station attendants or auto shop mechanics recommend unnecessary new parts or repair work and overcharge for parts replaced and services performed.

The Travelers' federation advised drivers to avoid being cheated by having their cars checked thoroughly before taking a trip. The maintenance schedule in the owner's manual should be reviewed. If scheduled maintenance is required, it should be done before leaving home.

AAA also urged motorists to take the following additional precautions:

- Do not leave the car unattended while filling up with gas.

- Get a receipt for all gasoline purchased, with cash or credit card.

- Check the car's water and oil levels before departing each morning and determine if fluid levels require attention at a service station.

- Be suspicious of an attendant who goes out of the way to inspect the car while pumping gas.

- If the car breaks down, obtain a written estimate of exactly what is to be done, before repair work starts, and get a signed receipt when paying for work done.

- Request that replaced parts be repaired so they can be inspected by a trusted mechanic when back home.

- If a repair shop refuses to provide a written estimate or does not agree to return replaced parts, do not authorize it to do the work. Find another repair shop.

Montreal fluffed with furs

By Judith Glynn

Talk to any traveler in Montreal and he's moaning about mink. Seems the Japanese bought up most of the pelts at the fur auctions and are selling them back to the Canadians at a whopping profit. Simple economics: a 40-percent to 50-percent increase in this fall's new mink models and about 10 percent in others.

If fur tickles your fancy, beating the higher prices means getting to Montreal immediately or having a trapper for a friend.

For the most conservative shopper, Montreal has a leather, high fashion, factory outlet spree. Inuit (Eskimo) art and 1,500 boutiques in underground shopping mall.

All prices in this article are in Canadian dollars, but an American dollar is currently worth $1.30 in Canadian currency.

Mink coats begin around $4,000. A 62-skin, swinging model costs $13,600. Full-length raccoon ranges from $2,500 to $4,500. Fluffy squirrel fox begins at $2,500. Thick fox-tail boas cost less than $100. Doctor Zivago-style hats are about $150; a sheared beaver cloche is $68; a chinchilla hat is $900 and mink mufflers are $40.

For big spenders, a Russian sable coat sells for $40,000 while a white mink suit costs $8,000.

Dubois Furs at Sherbrooke West is a small shop with great prices (some below the norm) and a nearby warehouse houses a larger selection. A father-and-son team sell only Canadian Mink and mink (consider the finest), and advises customers to look for furs with density and luster on the top hairs (except for beaver).

Humble little furriers sell direct from buildings near Mayfair and Ste. Marie streets. But if door-to-door canvassing isn't for you, stop into Hercules (on the corner) for a top-notch, high fashion selection. The advertised Fur Market nearby doesn't appear to be a bargain.

Papillon on fashionable Laurier West Avenue carries Dior styles and offers limousine service. Oslo advertises used furs but the selection is poor and prices are high.

Terrific, but costly, designer leather clothing is sold by Robert Krier on St. Laurent Street. He's one of Montreal's best and recently moved to Place Ville Marie.

The name implies a rougher look with style; a lamb-and-lambskin jacket sells for $320.

Similar dressy and sporty styles with bright linings are half the price at the Chabanel discount outlet located in northern Montreal. These office-like buildings are filled with hundreds of shops selling family clothing, shoes, handbags, jewelry and name brands. It's best to go floor to floor. Not all suites are open since many are manufacturers' representatives selling samples.

Building 555 is better-quality fashion. Building 99 is more of a hodgepodge mix. Best time is 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, although some showrooms are open all week. Bring cash. There are no returns.

Many of Montreal's shopping malls are underground, connecting, and resemble little cities. With the exception of Place Ville Marie, Place Alexis Nihon is three levels of noise; Faubourg St. Catherine has trendy pushcart-style gift shops selling plushies. Place Jardin is near Place de la Patrie. The Hotel Metropole is one of the largest and easiest to maneuver and Place Ville Marie a local favorite.

Once-fashionable Ste. Catherine Street is lusterless although chic department stores remain. Montrealers head for Laurier, Sherbrooke, St. Denis and Notre Dame streets for boutiques and big names.

Fall home, remodeling show opens at Convention Center

To live "the good life," one must start with good ideas, and good ideas for every area of the home are just what the 1987 Home & Remodeling Show is all about.

Scheduled Sept. 16 through 20 at Cervantes Convention Center, the show offers more than 300 exhibits with innovative remodeling and new construction ideas. It is sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis.

The show covers the full spectrum of home products and improvements, from elaborate living areas to kitchen fixtures.

In the remodeling realm, exhibitors are ready to meet visitors' demands with exciting ideas, including room additions.

Winter may be near, but keep a warm home by keeping you close to the sun the entire year. Likewise, Florida rooms and solariums with thermal windows let residents warm while saving energy.

One spectacular home addition at the show will be a continuous landscaping project by Unique Home and Patio. This living room features a large sunroom, a tiled bathroom and a glass-walled bathroom. The glass walls allow the landscaping within to grow from indoors to outdoors. With this caring and dramatic room, residents would be able to soak up an uninterrupted view of the surrounding landscape, both inside and out, while they soak in their Jacuzzi. The Bilt-Best casement windows contain blinds that allow the option of complete privacy.

The two most popular areas in the home to improve are kitchens and baths. But improvement does not necessarily mean total replacement. Some exhibitors can start homeowners on their way to that "dream kitchen," with custom cabinets, new floors or fancy fixtures. In the bathroom, a tub can be converted into a whirlpool, or possibly refinishing, maybe in a designer color. Exhibitors will help visitors discover how easy and affordable kitchen and bath improvements can be.

Several companies will feature log homes. One of them, Coachman Homes, is building a mountain home with cedar log siding to Cervantes. And show visitors interested in building a new home or another construction project can investigate offerings in building products.

For the third year, the Home Builders Association and West County Hardwoods will sponsor a handcrafted furniture competition. Entries will include replicas of antique oak chairs, armchairs, stools, hutches, roll-top desks and more. The winners will be determined by show visitors, who can vote for their favorite items.

Keeping rooms cozy in winter while saving as much energy as possible is a concern for everyone, and exhibitors at the show will offer a full range of heating (and cooling) methods.

Attractive fireplaces and wood-burning stoves and modern, efficient windows and doors will be represented at the show.

Those interested in enjoying the great outdoors in their own backyards can find pools, decks, screens and patio furniture.

Security systems, from the simplest to the most complex, will be displayed. There even will be a "security" system for the family dog, the barking dog fence, which confines dogs to a specific area by means of a radio signal.

The "good life" takes on a personal note with a variety of exercise equipment, including treadmills and exercise bikes. Also, Hughes Sauna will be exhibiting for the first time, displaying a wide range of sauna features. And at the Emissary Wines exhibit, visitors of legal drinking age will be offered a choice selection of wines from around the world.

Show hours are:

5 to 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Noon to 10 p.m. Thursday through Saturday.

Noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children.

The following admission discounts are available:

- Seniors 60 and over: Visitors can save half off the ticket price with the coupon appearing in today's Journal.
- Thursday is National Super-Saver Day. Look for half-off coupons in area National stores.
- An "early bird special" coupon appearing in today's issue of the Journal is good for half-price admission between noon and 5 p.m. Friday.

Senior citizens will be admitted to the show free of charge from noon to 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

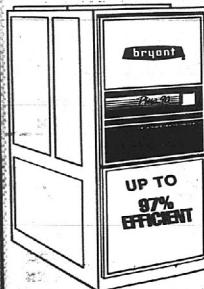

Vaccu-forming rescues aging tubs

Bathtubs and Tile BBT, backed by one of the largest porcelain and fiberglass resurfacing companies, will present its "Vaccu-Form" removal process, booth 1024 at the Home & Remodeling Show, Sept. 16-20 at Cervantes Convention Center.

The Vaccu-Forming process allows BBT to completely mold a panel of high-density, high-impact-resistant acrylic over an existing tub. This exclusive on-site molding process is the only one of its kind, and, after four years of more than a quarter million dollars in research, now is being offered to the public. A network of dealerships is forming, and the process soon will be available throughout the U.S.

Home saunas from Hughes have commercial features

Hughes Sauna Co., which will be at Booth 700 at the fall Home & Remodeling Show, offers consumers the opportunity to have a home sauna with professional and commercial features at a special home show price. The event will be Sept. 16-20 at Cervantes Convention Center.

Europeans have been using saunas for years, and they are becoming increasingly popular in this country. Some people like to use saunas for health reasons, others simply for relaxation.

Hughes saunas are made in Missouri and offer the following features:

• Interior and exterior solid top tongue-and-groove cedar, hem-dried redwood walls and ceilings for trouble-free use.

• Benches constructed of 2-by-4-inch redwood, fastened with rustproof screws, providing sag-free seating. Cedar logs used are cut from the bottom of the bench, where they are never seen nor touched by sauna users.

• A 3/4-inch airspace between the tongue-and-groove redwood interior wall and wall framing.

• Saunas are known worldwide for the good feelings they produce. As the body relaxes from heat, surface blood vessels expand, bringing a large flow of blood to the skin. The hot sauna warms the body internally, allowing therapeutic heat deep into the body. Through the perspiration process, acid and waste residue are removed from the blood, actually increasing the filtering capabilities of the kidneys.

After several trips to the sauna, pores that have been clogged for years may open, clearing old cosmetics, blackheads and acne-producing bacteria.

Keep rooms cozy in winter while saving as much energy as possible is a concern for everyone, and exhibitors at the show will offer a full range of heating (and cooling) methods.

Attractive fireplaces and wood-burning stoves and modern, efficient windows and doors will be represented at the show.

Security systems, from the simplest to the most complex, will be displayed. There even will be a "security" system for the family dog, the barking dog fence, which confines dogs to a specific area by means of a radio signal.

The "good life" takes on a personal note with a variety of exercise equipment, including treadmills and exercise bikes.

Also, Hughes Sauna will be exhibiting for the first time, displaying a wide range of sauna features.

Balloons to lift off Saturday afternoon

The Great Forest Park Balloon Race will conduct its 15th annual Hounds and Hare race Saturday, Sept. 19, in Forest Park, St. Louis.

In celebration of its national expansion to 90 cities nationwide, Purina Pets For People (TM) Program once again will sponsor the race.

About 50 of the nation's finest pilots will participate in the by-invitation-only race. The launch site will be on the Forest Park Golf Course near the corner of Grand and Skinner boulevards, St. Louis.

The Purina Pets For People balloon will serve as the "hare" and launch at 4:45 p.m. followed by the "hounds" at 5 p.m. The balloon that lands closest to the hare balloon at the end of the race is declared the winner.

For more information, call 982-2261.

IAN SMITH turns the corner and picks up some yardage against Columbia. Smith leads the area in total yardage.

Mr. Murphy, Matthews mutilate Madison, 49-6

By Gary King
Correspondent

COLUMBIA — When that ancient scribe Mr. Murphy pinned the words "Anything that can go wrong will" he more than likely wasn't thinking of the football team.

Saturday's score: Columbia 49.

Madison 6.

From the Trojans' perspective, the night was so bad that they were being examined by the Columbia Athletic Committee he would've been giving it the "hit-you-so" routine.

Anything that could've gone wrong for Madison did. Anything that could've gone right for Madison changed its mind and jumped the fence.

Exhibit A: After jumping out to a 14-6 lead on a 63-yard touchdown strike from Quincy Williams to Stephen Boyd mid-way through the first quarter, the Trojans appeared to have snuffed out Columbia's ensuing drive. However, Madison was called for roughing the kicker on the punt.

The Trojans regained possession and was given a first down. On the following play, Columbia halfback/tractor/trailer T.J. Matthews barreled 30 yards for the Eagles' first score of the contest with 2:12 left in the opening period.

Less than two minutes later, the Eagles regained possession at the Madison 40 after a 14-yard punt by Robbie Poston.

Five plays later, Eagle quarterback Doug Taake connected with Ian Smith for another big touchdown, giving Columbia a 14-6 lead with 10:38 left in the half.

Exhibit B: On the ensuing possession, Trojan quarterback William tossed two incomplete passes before fumbling on third and 10 from the Madison 20.

Thanks to Mr. Murphy, Columbia's 5-depth defense just happened to be in the area of the fumbled pigskin, which he promptly picked up and delivered to the end zone with 10:13 left in the first half.

If you're keeping score at home, that's two Columbia touchdowns in less than 20 seconds.

By this time the floodgates were fully open and all the Trojans could do was go with the flow, so to speak.

Warriors win stats battle, lose game

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor.

NORMANDY, Mo. — They say statistics can be twisted and turned to tell the story the statistician wants to tell.

But no matter how the numbers of Saturday's Warrior-Normandy game are arranged, the big numbers remain the same: Vikings 14, Warriors 6.

They also say statistics are for losers, and the Warriors had plenty of nice statistics to look at during Saturday's game. They just had one not-so-nice statistic to eyeball: Vikings 14, Warriors 6.

Granite City always seemed prepared to gain the upper hand in clash situations, which had won their season openers the week before. Field position was often good and the Vikings had all kinds of trouble moving the football. But something else seemed to go wrong and the result wasn't pretty: Vikings 14, Warriors 6.

There were a number of plays that could point to that might have made the difference," Warrior coach Ron Yates said. "We just didn't execute on many of them."

The most glaring blown opportunity came on the first drive of the game. Len Whiteside (who finished with 94 yards) combined with Kevin Suplin and Terry Stanley to move the ball 40 yards to the Normandy 3 for a first and goal. But Chris Bartling was sacked for a 12-yard loss and the Warriors settled for a 22-yard field goal by Kory Burton. But he hooked it wide left.

"That hurts when you go down the field like that and don't get anything," Yates said. "We wanted to get off to a better point, but Kory said he just missed the kick. That's part of the game."

The game remained scoreless until the Vikings got their first break late in the third quarter. Until then, they had no first downs. But a high snap to Ben Szczedlak on a punt resulted in a loss of 10 yards and a Normandy first down at the Granite City 24.

Courtney Stroud's option pass went through the hands of Sylvester Williams on a certain touch-down and Normandy was faced with fourth and 12.

But quarterback Jeff Scott hit Kelvin Abernathy over the middle for 12 yards and the Vikings had their first pass of the day and their first first down.

After getting the ball, Stroud ran four times, the last one a two-yard touchdown on the second play of the fourth quarter.

Stroud skirted right end with a two-point conversion with 11:36 left.

The Warriors came back for a 72-yard, nine-play drive highlighted by Suplin's 45-yard run to the Viking 4. The senior co-captain bulled in from a yard out with 8:04 remaining, but couldn't get in on the conversion attempt.

It was the cruncher. The Warriors got five yards on a procedure penalty and Burton kicked off from the 45. But his bouncing kick was fielded by Abernathy at the 22 and he took off down the left sideline for a 78-yard touchdown run.

"We had some problems on special teams," Yates said. "We were getting good, making a little drive kick there. But we still should have stopped it."

It appeared at least one Warrior might have been clipped on the runback, but Yates wasn't sure.

"We have the worst seat in the house on the sidelines," he said. "We'll have to see the film to find out."

After an exchange of punts, the Warriors had one last chance. Joe Wallace replaced Bartling as quarterback early in the final minute. Wallace was downfield. He hit Marvin Weber, who made a diving catch, for 24 yards to the Viking 35 with 56 seconds left. Two plays later Wallace hit tight end Jim Stout on a set play to the Viking 7.

But Stout fumbled the ball as he was hit and defensive back Maurice Johnson fell on it at the 22 with 20 seconds left to kill the threat.

"With everything that went against us, we were in it until that last fumble," Yates said.

The stats were incredible. The Warriors had 14 first downs to only two for the Vikings. Granite

Soccer parade

GRANITE CITY MAYOR Von Dee Cruse visits with some of the girls in the Madison County Girls Soccer Association. The association kicked off its fall season with a parade in downtown Granite City on Saturday.

City had 144 rushing yards and 67 passing yards for 211 total yards. Vikings had 140 rushing, 30 yards of offense (39 rushing and 12 passing). Normandy committed eight penalties for 50 yards to only two for six against Granite City. The Vikings had a net offense of -1 yard in the first half to 91 for the Warriors.

"Our defensive team did a super job again," Yates said. "Anytime you can hold a big, fast team like Normandy to one touchdown you're doing all right."

And that wasn't all. After the Normandy 28 in the second quarter, the Warriors lined up for a 44-yard field goal attempt. But the ball was perfect as Bartling spotted Tom Johnson behind everybody in the end zone. His high pass fluttered towards Johnson who couldn't hang on at the goal line.

It worked well, but again we couldn't execute on it," Yates said.

The Warriors also got interceptions from Sutphin and Stanley, but couldn't capitalize. And when they got close, sacks were a problem. Warrior quarterbacks were sacked six times for 46 yards in losses.

Walke replaced Bartling early and the sophomore completed six of 10 passes for 67 yards. But he often waited too long in finding receivers and got in trouble.

"That's something you have to realize will happen with underclassmen at quarterback," Yates said. "Joe just wasn't pulling the trigger fast enough. I told him to keep his head in the game and he connected on a couple in that last drive."

But sacks, fumbles and special teams combined to stop the Warriors.

Walke started with the kickoff return and the missed-field goal early. It was the special teams that had a rough day.

And that wasn't all. After the Normandy 28 in the second quarter, the Warriors lined up for a 44-yard field goal attempt. But the ball was perfect as Bartling spotted Tom Johnson behind everybody in the end zone. His high pass fluttered towards Johnson who couldn't hang on at the goal line.

Trojans

Exhibit C. With 6:15 remaining in the half, Williams and Taake engaged in a scuffle, earning both the Big Thump from the referee.

Prior to his ejection, Williams' only completion in seven attempts was the touchdown heave to Boyd. Taake had been equally quiet, completing one of two touchdowns. Both quarterbacks were in deep trouble.

The difference, however, came in the play of the second-string quarterback.

Poston added to the Trojans' winnings with two interceptions, one fumble and no completions in four attempts.

Columbia's Todd Wolfmeier completed six of eight attempts for 111 yards and two touchdowns.

And so the Trojans' destiny was sealed. Coming Quincy took the wind out of us," a less-than-chipper Don Smith said after the game. "We needed good relief after that, but Robbie (Poston) kind of checked me."

Poston's score was 23-6, and the fat lady was clearing her throat and getting ready to turn out the lights.

In all, the Trojans amassed only 94 yards offense in the half, 63 of which came on the touch-down toss from Williams to Boyd.

The second half was a virtual Xerox of the first, with Columbia scoring on all four of its possessions: Matthews on a two-yard plunge; Mathews on a 50-yard screen pass; Eric Baldridge on a 10-yard screen; and, finally, Wolfmeier on an 18-yard strike to Scott Germanin.

4-6.

"Our offensive line didn't block at all," Smith said, perhaps offering the best explanation as to why Columbia rolled up 370 yards of offense to Madison's 100.

"It takes a pretty good stud to bring down Matthews," Columbia coach Jerry Germanin said, perhaps offering the best explanation as to why Columbia rolled up 370 yards of offense to Madison's 100.

"Matthews is a pretty good stud to bring down Matthews," Columbia coach Jerry Germanin said, perhaps offering the best explanation as to why Columbia rolled up 370 yards of offense to Madison's 100.

Matthews also received help — as if he needed it — from Baldridge, who contributed 92 yards on 13 carries.

The Trojans' best efforts came from Ian Smith, who gained 69 yards on 11 attempts, and Ricky Ball, who added 22 yards on 11 carries. In a 27-4 victory over Columbia in the season opener, Ball and Smith combined for 151 yards.

"I felt we could out-execute them," Germanin said. "But I was worried because we are bigger and quicker than we were. But as it turned out, we totally dominated them on both sides of the line."

Smith agreed.

"I was expecting this at all," the Trojan coach said. "I think we have some quitters on this team. I think they showed their colors in the beginning, went out in the huddle a couple of times and some of the guys were out in la-la land. I really thought we had better character than that."

The Trojans, now 1-1, will host Waterloo on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Blues' only home pre-season game vs. Black Hawks

The St. Louis Blues will play nine pre-season games in preparation for their 21st National Hockey League season. High lighting the schedule is a 7:30 p.m. game at The Arena Saturday, Sept. 26 against the Chicago Blackhawks.

Tickets for the game will go on sale at The Arena box office or ticket outlets or can be purchased by calling Dialix at 314-434-6600.
